Monica Kalozdi

Pem Dorjee Sherpa and wife, Moni

Climbing to the summit of the highest mountain on earth is a feat that can only be accomplished by a special few. Not only does it require supreme physical fitness and skill, it also demands an enormous amount of psychological strength and will-power. At a height of 29,028 feet above sea-level, Everest pushes the human body and mind to the very edge of what is possible. Ever since Sir Edmund Hillary and Sherpa Tenzing Norgay became the first climbers to conquer Everest in 1953, the mountain has become a Mecca for all serious climbers. It is a journey that can and does change lives and all who return from the summit have their own very unique stories to tell.

Monica Kalozdi is the only woman from Louisiana to have climbed Everest and only one of ten women in America and thirty women world-wide to have climbed the seven highest summits on all seven continents. Remarkable achievements by a truly remarkable lady! Join us and learn how her disciplined passion for life has resulted in success as a mountaineer and success as a leading Louisiana business woman.

Pem Dorjee Sherpa and his wife Moni, are the only two people ever to be married on the summit of Everest. Theirs is a truly remarkable story of how love can overcome religious and cultural differences. Pem and Moni own and run a successful climbing and trekking company in Nepal and Pem is a regular and popular speaker in the United States.
